30 May to 7 June 2014

Nine days of fun that everyone's invited to

brockley's rock

At Brockley's Rock we like to think of ourselves as part of the community here and we are very proud to be sponsoring Art In The Park at Hilly Fields on Saturday 7 June.

After nearly three years in the neighbourhood we've added Gluten-Free Tuesdays, kept our fish as fresh and sustainable as ever and even bagged an award: if you didn't know already we've got the Best Chips in London.

Have a great time this weekend and look out for our tasters.

Welcome to brockleymax

30 May to 7 June 2014

I'm delighted Brockley Max is back this year, and it's heart-warming that so many people are glad it's returning. The wide range of events is testament to our community's creativity and continuing commitment to the festival. This year we focused on increasing the number of volunteers and supporting them to get the most out of the festival, whether as performers, event organisers, stewards or any of the hundred-and-one roles on offer. All this makes Brockley Max a true community festival.

It's great to be back!

This is the 13th year we've held the Brockley Max festival. It began as - and continues to be - a showcase of the amazing talent of Brockley, Crofton Park, Honor Oak and Ladywell.

We'll be kicking off the festivities on Friday 30 May with the Opening Night of music and performance by Brockley station. Performers of all ages playing a range of instruments and musical styles will ensure there's entertainment to appeal to everyone.

Brockley Max festival concludes with a fantastic family day on Hilly Fields with Art In The Park workshops and the Closing Night on Saturday 7 June. In between is a host of events from cartoons to comedy, writing to workshops, music, art and much more.

Brockley Max is run by Max Media Arts, a community-led, volunteer organisation. Shops, churches, cafes, bars and local businesses support the festival by hosting events, giving raffle prizes and through sponsorship.

In fact, you can still chip in and help fund Brockley Max by buying a piece of the festival as a Patchwork Present at bit.ly/OBJSTF.

The festival only happens because dozens of volunteers give their time, whether performing, organising or helping at events. They make Brockley a special place to live. To get involved, please email moira@brockleymax.co.uk.

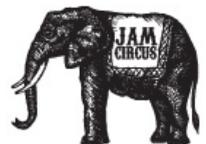

Many thanks to this year's Brockley Max sponsors

brockleymax invites you to Opening Night

Friday 30 May 5pm to 10.30pm
outside Brockley station

As always, the Opening Night of Brockley Max promises to be a fantastic evening of performance, hosted by Dre, the coolest, smoothest MC in town and produced by well-known Brockley muso Richard Swan.

As well as watching a host of performers, you'll be able to buy food and drink from the nearby bars. The murals near Brockley Station form a great backdrop to this energetic event.

Opening Night acts include

Montage Theatre Arts Street Dancers
Sam Barnett, youth category winner of the Mayor of London's Big Busk 2013
Hummy Mummies choir
Indie-rock band Dawsons
Zara
The Hit Men
Acoustic folk trio The Sea Kings
